

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electric power tool has a plurality of operational component groups; a plurality of separate housings which accommodate the operational component groups, the housings being couplable with one another in series, at least one of the housings being composed of a synthetic plastic casing which is reinforced with a metal sleeve.